Changing the Landscape.

CHANGING THE LANDSCAPE

The two million dollar-a-day habit

At Garst, we make a daily commitment to increasing your productivity and yields through innovation. Garst is backed by the resources and research of Syngenta, the largest company in the world fully dedicated to agriculture. Our yearly RESEARCH investment of hundreds of millions of dollars integrates sophisticated genomics, advanced genetic understanding, molecular marker-enhanced breeding, native and biotech traits and plant-protecting seed treatments into the hybrids we offer. Every day, Garst works to expand your product choices and increase your access to powerful new seed technologies that will change the way America farms.

CHANGING THE LANDSCAPE

Think bushels, not barrels.

Garst® leadership in advancing ethanol production will impact America's energy and agricultural economies for years to come. Our Blue + Yellow = Green (BYG) initiatives — such as offering corn hybrids with characteristics specifically designed for use in dry-grind ETHANOL production — grew out of years of investment and research that's paying off at the pump. Garst blue plus corn-based ethanol yellow blends into green benefits for the environment and the farm economy, creating a more energy independent America and new market opportunities for the American farmer.

Planning without information is like planting without seed.

We turn data into decisions.

A successful growing season takes the best seed products you can find... and the best information you can get. It takes Garst. Garst's professional sales force and expert Area Agronomists convert data into smart recommendations specific to your operation — recommendations that enhance your productivity and deliver the best in field management practices and agronomic insights. When you plant Garst, you get more than the finest seed — you get the right information you need to guide your business forward at maximum efficiency, earning maximum returns.

The principle of supply and demand is very simple.

You demand it. We supply it.

At Garst, meeting the demands of a grower who expects a bigger year than last means a tireless focus on creating better performing seeds. Backed by the research and resources of Syngenta,[™] Garst delivers you the end result of a $2 million-a-day worldwide research program that's committed to improving your returns next season. We fill every bag and bulk box of Garst seed with exciting new genetics, traits and seed treatments that enhance your productivity and yields.

From here, others see the next row.

We see the next horizon.

Want to know what's next in agriculture? Follow a Garst grower into the field. With every seed, Garst adds the knowledge and insights of more than 5,000 scientists worldwide. We add biotechnology breakthroughs launched from 1.5 million corn test plots and 800,000 soybean plots, evaluated annually—a commitment of more than $2 million every day to agricultural research. Then when you add the newest traits and seed treatments, you get the innovation and choice you deserve. Beyond the next row is a new horizon in seed technology—coming to you from Garst.

We're transforming the way America farms.

Every season, a better reason to plant Garst.

When we get together, we grow together. Your Garst sales professional and Area Agronomist work at the frontier of agriculture — in your front yard and in your fields. Backed by the resources and research of Syngenta[®], your Garst team is 100 percent vested in agriculture, committed to delivering high-performing products that ensure improved productivity while bringing economic value to growers.

By sharing innovative research, breakthrough plant science and the most powerful tool on the farm — information — Garst is transforming the way America farms handshakes by handshake.
